RECRUITMENT POLICY

IDENTIFYING RECRUITMENT REQUIREMENTS:

Our goal is to choose the most suitable candidate for the job based on demonstrated skills, knowledge, qualifications, and experience. We aim to recruit competent individuals to work with partners, communities, and other organizations in the middle office onboarding space.

We prioritize diversity and inclusion in our recruitment process. Our goal is to create a diverse workforce that reflects different perspectives and backgrounds. We will actively seek candidates from underrepresented groups and ensure our recruitment practices are free from bias.

RECRUITMENT PLANNING:

Recruitment is the responsibility of the Hiring Manager and will be initiated by him or her. The Hiring Manager must ensure budget availability for the position, which will be approved by the Directors before the recruitment process is initiated. Recruitment may be necessary to fill vacancies arising from any of the following circumstances:

- Resignation, Termination, or Death of a Staff Member. Opening of new offices or increased volume of operations. Expansion into new areas.
- Arising of a leave vacancy Internal Secondments of Staff.

The Human Resource Department will ensure that all recruitment and overall personnel will be within the prevailing budgetary norms and ratios.

ADVERTISEMENT:

Vacancies will be announced internally and/or externally. The HR

Department is responsible for all vacancy announcements. Unless specified otherwise, we will advertise for the most qualified candidates internally and externally to ensure a fair and transparent recruitment process. Both internal and external candidates will compete for the position simultaneously. The standard duration for displaying advertisements is a minimum of two weeks. However, in urgent recruitment cases, the display period can be shortened to one week with due approval of the Director. Advertisements will typically be posted on suitable websites tailored to the specific job opening. The job advertisement will include the job description as well as the essential and desirable requirements of the position.

HEADHUNTING:

When recruiting for leadership positions and specialized functional and thematic roles, it may be necessary to headhunt for the most appropriate candidates. If such candidates accept the Company's invitation to apply, they will be placed directly onthe shortlist. However, they will go through the same formal selection process applicable to all other applicants.

MINIMUM STANDARDS:

Please note the following: Only candidates who meet the minimum eligibility criteria outlined in the job description and/or internal notifications will be considered. However, regarding exceptional candidates, human resources may relax the eligibility criteria in consultation with the Director concerned, if necessary. Our aim is to recruit individuals with the most appropriate competencies, including attitudes, behaviors, outlook, and values that align with the values of the organization.

GENERAL GUIDELINES:

For selection, the following guidelines will be observed:

- A well-defined job description (JD), will be shared with the panel members before the interview.
- Generally, a minimum of three candidates will be interviewed for a single position.
- All selection processes will be carried out by a panel consisting of at least 3 members, including the Hiring Manager, one HR person, and a third person from the same or other Department of the organization, of an appropriate level.
- The selection process may include a written test and a personal interview or just a personal interview, depending on the type of recruitment.
- If a candidate cannot be present for an interview but it's in organizational interest to interview them, interviews can be conducted through via video conferencing or teleconferencing initially.
- An Assessment Sheet should be filled and signed by all members of the interview panel. At the end of the selection process, a report will be prepared and filed for future reference.
- HR will be present on selection panels for all staff of all grades. Where possible, the selection panels should include at least one woman member.
- HR will conduct reference checks for all the external candidates selected for a position. A minimum of three professional reference checks will be done for the successful candidate.
- The Employment Agreement issued to the selected candidate will contain the position details, grade, location, reporting relationship, job description, salary details, etc.

- Given the rise of remote and hybrid work models, the recruitment process will consider candidates who may work remotely or in hybrid settings. Job descriptions will specify whether the role is remote, hybrid, or on-site, and the selection process will accommodate remote interviews as needed.

- The onboarding process will include a structured program that helps new employees integrate into the company's culture and workflows, especially for remote employees. This will include virtual orientation sessions, access to an online knowledge base, and regular check-ins with HR during the first 90 days.

- We aim to enhance the candidate experience by ensuring timely communication throughout the recruitment process. Feedback will be provided to all candidate's post-interview, and a dedicated point of contact will be assigned to address any queries candidates may have during the recruitment process.

- In recognition of the competitive nature of the IT industry, we will maintain a continuous recruitment approach for key roles, keeping an active pool of potential candidates ready for immediate hiring needs. This proactive strategy will ensure that the company can quickly respond to staffing demands.
